edTPA Certification Requirement

The edTPA® is a requirement for most New York State initial teacher certificates. Through this national performance assessment, individuals demonstrate their readiness to teach by planning lessons that support their students' strengths and needs, teaching the lessons in an educational setting, assessing student learning, and reflecting on their assessment results to determine if they need to adjust their program. Individuals in a teacher preparation program should work with faculty and/or staff to determine which edTPA to complete before registering for the assessment. Teachers who do not initially pass the assessment may re-take the assessment, but not re-take any NYS certification exams, including the edTPA.

If you are applying for multiple teacher certificates or certificates in multiple subject areas (e.g., Childhood Education and Students with Disabilities (Grades 1-6) Generalist), then you would apply for a (first) initial certificate in the subject area of your edTPA and apply for other initial certificate(s) in the other subject area(s) through the "Additional Certificate" pathway. The edTPA is not required for additional certificates; individuals only need to pass one edTPA in the subject area of their (first) initial certificate.
